Talks and Conversations

A conversation about AI, drawn from what I've built.

Service overview · English (US)

Version 1, November 2026

Talks and Conversations

Topics

A company designed around AI

What changed in how I operate and where a person still decides.

Agents and accountability

What I'd delegate to an agent and what I wouldn't yet.

Building with community

What music, events and marketing taught me.

Digital assets, no promises

An educational view, with no financial advice.

When it makes sense

You're organizing an event or editorial space and want someone who speaks from experience.

The underlying problem

Much of what's said about AI is general opinion and leaves people with little they can use.

What changes

A conversation with concrete examples and questions answered candidly.

This is what we aim for. It isn't a guarantee: it also depends on the decisions made along the way.

What's included

- ✓ Preparation for the audience
- ✓ The talk or conversation
- ✓ Q&A

Formats

Keynote

A main talk with story, method and my own examples.

Panel or fireside

A guided conversation with others.

Talk plus practice

A short talk followed by an exercise with the group.

Interview or podcast

In studio or remote, for media and communities.

How we prepare

1

Audience

Who will be there and what they need to take away.

2

Format

Mode, length, Q&A and venue.

3

Content

I choose examples that make sense for that crowd.

4

The day

Tech check, talk and questions.

An example

You can check it

Verifiable example

The examples come from companies with public websites and from my story, written on this site. Organizers can read both before inviting me.

↗ Press kit ↗ My story

Who does what

My part

I prepare and give the talk myself.

The team

My team can help coordinate logistics.

Time and participation

Duration

Set with the organizer based on the format.

Languages

English and Spanish.

Requirements

Microphone, screen, a prior tech check and time for questions.

What I need from you

- → Audience profile
- → Date, place and length
- → Technical requirements and a prior check

Talks and Conversations

Two separate paths

A talk for a company or event is a service and gets booked. A press interview or podcast is an editorial invitation: it has no price, and no appearance can be bought.

Investment

How it's set

Booked talks are quoted by format, venue and preparation. Editorial invitations carry no fee and are considered case by case.

Not included

- ✕ Purchased media appearances
- ✕ Investment recommendations
- ✕ Travel and lodging, agreed separately
- ✕ Recording or reuse without permission

Common questions

Do you charge for interviews?

Editorial invitations, like podcasts or press interviews, are weighed on interest and schedule. They aren't paid and aren't for sale. Talks booked by companies or events are different and get a quote.

How far ahead should I reach out?

The earlier the better. I need time to get to know the audience and prepare examples.

Do you talk about investing?

From an educational angle and my own experience. I don't give investment recommendations in any setting.

Next step

Tell me who'll be in the room.

Share the event, audience and date. If it's an editorial invitation, say so in your message.
